Broadmoor Police Face Bankruptcy

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Unless Broadmoor Village residents agree to ante up more tax monies in the next two years, the police district will be bankrupt.

This prediction was made by two of the community's top officials last week — Police Commissioner John McCloskey and Police Chief Raymond Savage.

Broadmoor is the last active police district in the state. It was organized in 1948 and Savage became chief in 1952.

At one time Broadmoor covered a 10 square mile area. Today, that area has dwindled, because of annexation by neighboring Daly City, to about 2¼ square miles with a population of some 9,000 persons.

The exact population figure of the Broadmoor district, which covers an area from the foothills of San Bruno Mountain to an enclave surrounded by Daly City, is not known because a census has never been taken.

Broadmoor residents, for the most part, are fiercely proud of their independence.

They consider Daly City a beast in the brush waiting to devour them.

"That's nonsense," says McCloskey. "Daly City isn't a demon in the cellar."

McCloskey said the police district, headed by a three person board, has been a strong, cohesive force binding the people of the district together.

"We are able to provide a high quality of service at low cost," McCloskey said.

This "strong, cohesive force" is the major reason the district is almost broke.

This year's budget for the district is $183,500.

With the three-fourths of one per cent of the total assessed valuation of the community its major source of revenues, Broadmoor can only pull in about $70,000 through taxes.

Another $16,000 is received from Homeowners' Property Tax relief; $3,000 from Business Inventories; and $3,600 from the Colma Fire District.

A police service agreement with the Town of Colma has provided another $48,000 annually. But this contract was cancelled last week.

Colma councilmen have agreed to hire three additional policemen and to form its own independent police department, it was learned.

With all these funds, Broadmoor can still see the writing on the wall.

On the other hand, residents of Broadmoor may go to the polls and vote for an increase in their own taxes — as high as they want to go — under provisions of SB 90.

There is, however, a point of diminishing returns.

For example, Daly City's tax rate is $1.91. Broadmoor's is about $1.45, including charges for the police district, Colma Fire, Colma Lighting and the County Library services, the latter provided by Daly City under contract.

To provide a brief respite, citizens would have to vote for at least a 50-cent tax hike, McCloskey believes.

"We're simply going to go bankrupt," Savage says.

For many years, both Savage and McCloskey have kept their silence on the School Budgets: Old Rules No Longer Apply

By JOHN HORGAN

Public school finance used to be about as interesting as a Totie Fields weight check.

It was always just more of the same. More students, more money via the steady rise in property values and more ennui. Budgets for school districts were invariably routine, especially in places like wealthy San Mateo County.

There was rarely an attempt to cut fat out of those annual documents and they were allowed to grow to the point where this county's taxpayers this year are spending close to $210 million on public education in grades kindergarten through 12th.

But the education game has suddenly changed in California. The old rules no longer apply. Enrollments are declining, money is tight and inflation has reared its ugly head to an unprecedented degree. This county has seen enrollments (figured in terms of average daily attendance) drop by 7,836 in the last five years. This trend is expected to continue indefinitely. Statewide, it has been estimated that 20 per cent of California's school districts are in dire monetary straits.

State laws, particularly SB 90, have mandated that attempts must be made to equalize the amount of money spent on each California child. Affluent areas like this one are vulnerable because they typically spend a great deal more per student than poorer regions. Double-digit inflation has become another negative factor added into this sorry mix to worsen an already troubling situation.

So, the people who run the schools — boards of trustees and administrators — are desperately seeking solutions to their problems.

Nine county school districts are going to ask the voters within their boundaries to approve revenue increases March 4. The total new money generated in 1975-76 would be nearly $7.6 million. Several other districts may go to the public May 27. In the Bay Area, 37 districts will seek fresh funds March 4.

Last November, six districts sought a total of nearly $17 million. All six measures failed badly at the polls. Four of the six — the Bayshore School District, the Sequoia Union High School District, the Portola Valley School District and the South San Francisco Unified School District — are returning to the electorate in March. Three of them have considerably scaled down their prior requests. South San Francisco's has remained the same, $95 per child.

South San Francisco's increase also is the smallest being sought. Interestingly, that measure has stirred up the most organized opposition. The Teacher-Taxpayer Coalition Against Proposition C is fighting the increase with a vengeance. It is virtually the same group which helped defeat the measure last November.

Trouble is brewing in other parts of the county as well.

In the Woodside School District, officials are asking for approval of a revenue increase which would raise the expenditure per child by 37 per cent within three years. This is a single-school district which is experiencing an enrollment decline like most other county districts. How is this 37 per cent boost justified?

"Really, it gets down to a question of local control," explains a spokesman for a Woodside information committee on the tax election. "Woodside values its school very much. A sound elementary system is a cornerstone of this community. If this election fails, we might well see an exodus of students into the private schools. That would be tragic."

If the Woodside election fails, there is a strong possibility the district would be forced to consider consolidating with neighboring districts.

All of the districts seeking revenue increases are considering severe budget cuts for 1975-76, and the closing of schools is becoming a topic of conversation in several. However, as officials of the Redwood City School District prepare for their March 4 election, they have made certain that public discussion of a sensitive master plan for the district's future, which involves the recommended closing of two campuses, be held off until after the election.

In November, the San Mateo Union High School District sought authorization for a $600 per child revenue boost which would have provided more than $7.3 million of available new monies in 1975-76. The measure failed.

District officials have been considering going to the public in May but there appears to be a movement under way on the board of trustees to squelch such an effort. The implication is that, maybe, the district doesn't need such a massive infusion of new cash until 1976-77 or later. The unspoken question then becomes "Suppose the November issue had passed? What would the district have done with all that money?"

One answer — and it is a universal one for all districts — is that fresh funds would greatly alleviate pressure from employes for salary hikes. Most district budgets are so tightly strapped that cost-of-living increases for employes are all but out of the question. Wages usually account for between 80 and 90 per cent of school budgets in this county. To provide employes with any sort of reasonable wage boosts, many districts believe success at the polls this year is mandatory.

Teachers are well aware of this. As never before, they have entered the political arena as they seek to exercise influence over districts' policies, priorities and practices. Educators have turned out in considerable numbers to run for school board seats this March. Even a husband-wife team is running. Mr. and Mrs. William

SF Told: 'Mind Your Own Business'

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce has informed the San Francisco Board of Supervisors it encourages any efforts being made to get state and federal money for park acquisition on San Bruno Mountain.

At the same time, the chamber politely suggested the supervisors should mind their own business — and that San Bruno Mountain is not their business.

The chamber conceded that any developments on the mountain would possibly affect San Francisco regarding traffic flows, visual impacts and such, however, until a final Environmental Impact Report (EIR) is completed no one can say to what extend this impact will be.

"We would like to respectfully remind the Board of Supervisors . . . that San Bruno Mountain is in San Mateo County and while we agree that the citizens of San Francisco will be affected by the future development (there) . . . the full effect cannot be ascertained at this time until the (EIR) is studied," the chamber said.

The political skirmish began last week when a subcommittee of the San Francisco supervisors pushed through a resolution calling for the city to seek government funds to preserve the mountain as open space, pointing out the visual impact any development on the mountain would have to neighboring San Francisco.

San Mateo County government and civic officials felt the resolution was a slight on their abilities to plan their own areas.

Comments in the wake of the committee's resolution came fast and furious.

A former Daly City mayor, Frank Pacelli, said, "What San Francisco supervisors need is a geography lesson."

Pacelli also singled out Sutro television Tower "as a good example of an eyesore."

Others hit San Francisco for developments it allowed around Lake Merced in recent months, claiming the city was "not sincere about preserving open space."

But San Mateo County Supervisor Jean Fassler said she agreed San Francisco should have a voice in planning the mountain because of its effect on that city.

She said both San Mateo and San Francisco county planning departments were in contact on the matter.

The chamber letter noted, "We have no objection, whatsoever, for the preservation of open land and parks.

"In fact, we have been informed that Visitacion Associates (developers of the mountain) already set aside over 1,300 acres for future park use."

And while Daly City is concerned about open space preservation, "we are equally concerned with the need for housing, the need for jobs that the future development will bring."

The strongest part of the letter came in the final paragraph:

"We are fully competent to preserve our own open spaces, and remind you once more that through the graciousness of God . . . San Bruno Mountain is in San Mateo County adjacent to Daly City."

The resolution drafted by San Francisco County Supervisor Dianne Feinstein will be presented to the full board Feb. 18, it was understood.

Fire Routs SSF Hotel Occupants

Arson is suspected in a blaze that swept through one wing of the Normandy Hotel at the corner of Miller and Cypress streets in South San Francisco early Saturday.

Firemen and two policemen helped some 25 occupants of the hotel to safety through smoke-filled hallways and down stairways.

No one was hurt.

The policemen were on patrol when they spotted the blaze shortly after 4 a.m. They began awakening occupants, and helping them to the streets until smoke and flames drove the officers out.

Firemen, wearing special smoke gear, went back into the two-story structure and began a systematic room by room search to insure everyone had escaped.

The hotel is constructed in a "U" shape.

One of the wings was damaged moderately in the blaze, however, there have been no estimates of damage, authorities said.

Bomb Blasts Gas Station

A bomb explosion ripped through a South San Francisco service station Sunday, blasting out plate glass windows and destroying a soft-drink vending machine in front of the building. No one was injured.

Police were at a loss to explain why anyone would want to blow up the Union 76 station at 998 El Camino Real.

The device was placed between the station and the soft drink machine, police said.

At 5:19 p.m., a loud explosion rocked the area.

The station was closed at the time of the blast, police said.

What type of bomb and why it was placed there is still a mystery, police said.

The cost of damage resulting from the bomb is not known at this time, police said.

Investigation is continuing.

Moscone To Open New Office

State Senator George R. Moscone (D-SF,SM) will officially open his new San Mateo District Office at 10 a.m., Friday, Feb. 21, at 383 San Bruno Ave. West, San Bruno.

The Democratic Majority Leader will be on hand for coffee and doughnuts that morning and hopes to meet with as many constituents as possible.

"I look forward to this opening as an opportunity to meet people and exchange ideas," Senator Moscone said. "I am especially concerned with the problems of this new part of my district, and I want to learn firsthand about them and plans for resolving them," he added.

The San Mateo County Coordinator for Senator Moscone, Pat Wally, will also be at the opening. The public is invited.

Daly City Couple Held For Attempted Burglary

Two Daly City police officers on patrol near the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station arrested a husband and wife for attempted burglary of a San Francisco home about midnight Thursday. A third person escaped.

Arrested and charged with attempted burglary were Andre Furtch, 24, and his wife Darlene, 19, whose last known address was a Mission Street motel in Daly City.

Officers Fred Holewinske and Richard Miller were on patrol about 11:05 p.m. on Delong Street when they allegedly spotted a woman standing near a back fence at 323 Delong, just over the San Francisco County line.

Stopping to investigate, the officers said they saw two men standing near an open window of the home.

While Miller took the woman into custody, Holewinske chased one of the men into Daly City where he managed to apprehend him.

The couple was turned over to San Francisco police at the Ingleside station.

GROUNDBREAKING
Local residents gathered Saturday for the St. Augustine's Church groundbreaking ceremony.

St. Augustine Church Groundbreaking Held

St. Augustine parish held a symbolic groundbreaking ceremony on the church site, Callan and Greendale, South San Francisco Feb. 15 at 10:30 a.m.

Father Paul E. Duggan has been pastor since the parish was founded in 1970. Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken presided at the ceremonies assisted by Msgr. Richard W. Power.

Clergy and civic officials from South San Francisco, San Bruno and Daly City also participated. All parish organizations of St. Augustine participated in the ceremony including the Men's Club, Women's Club, Holy Name Society, Altar Sodality, CCD, Youth Club and St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Music was presented by the parish children, young adults and adult choirs.

Following the groundbreaking, a social gathering was held, and Archbishop McGucken greeted St. Augustine parishioners.

When completed, St. Augustine will be the only church of any denomination in the Westborough-Serramonte area.

The church, designed by Sig Iyama, will be built by Johnson and Mape, general contractors.

San Mateo Community District

Six Seek College Seats

There are six persons running for three seats on the Board of Trustees of the San Mateo Community College District in the March 4 election.

Three of the candidates are incumbents. They are: Eleanore Nettle of San Mateo, James Tormey of San Mateo and Carl Ward of San Mateo.

The three challengers are: Michael Gordon of Redwood City, Phrasel Shelton of Foster City and Terese Shinn of San Mateo.

One candidate, Mrs. Shinn, did not answer the questions.

The candidates were asked a set of questions by The Post. Here are the others' answers:

1. A master plan to guide the district's future is in the works. In light of the fact that enrollments in the South County have failed to live up to prior expectations, would you like to see the master plan address itself to the issue of what to do about Canada College in Redwood City? Do you have any thoughts about the future of that campus?

Gordon—The master plan definitely should explore the role of Canada College in the community college system. Although the South County population is smaller than that of the central and northern regions, its educational needs are equally as great. The depressed communities in Redwood City and East Palo Alto must be granted the opportunities they need for educational development. Canada is located in a position to not only attract South County residents but to reach out into the community to study its needs and problems and to initiate projects designed to help the needs of its people.

Nettle—Enrollments and existing facilities at Canada College cannot be considered and analyzed in isolation. The master plan study under way involves a detailed and comprehensive review of, among other aspects of district operation, enrollments, programs and facilities at all three colleges. Such a review will provide a data base and documentation which will enable the district board to make wise decisions relating to site utilization and educational program planning. No one knows with certainty what future enrollment trends will be. There are indications, however, that the district's three colleges will increasingly be called upon to serve a greater number of part-time students and . . . students who seek the upgrading of skills.

Shelton — I believe that we will need all of the facilities of each of the three campuses to meet the needs of the 1970's and 1980's for more and better trained people in the areas of technical trades and skills. There is a need for up-to-date training in vocational skills that are relevant to today's and tomorrow's job markets. I believe this can be accomplished within our present tax limitations. We must immediately get on with establishing a master plan that sets up priorities so that the funds that we have can be spent on courses and programs that will help people develop the kinds of skills that will enable them to earn their own way.

Tormey — With the master planning effort ongoing, it would be inappropriate for an incumbent trustee to now make comments on the particulars which should be developed by the plan. However, in a broader sense, a few points should be made. For one, I have always been critical of three colleges all doing their own thing the same way, with an administration then trying to coordinate the troika, each pulling in its own direction. There must be a clearly defined channel of communication and authority between the colleges and the district management and between the three colleges. A reduction of duplication in a number of areas is under study and is probably appropriate. Given the physical location of the colleges, their close proximity to the same freeway and in terms of time-travel, a reduction of duplicated programs appears appropriate. Coordination of community services and public relations must also be considered.

Ward—The master plan is addressing itself to Canada College. Personally, I think this college is needed to serve the people in the South County area. Recent enrollment increases indicate that numbers of students are up 5½ per cent with ADA up 4 per cent which demonstrates its real potential. I would like to see more Canada College programs extended into the community, particularly in such areas as East Palo Alto. This would assist in meeting basic educational needs at convenient off-campus locations. It is my desire that the master plan will identify these needs in key locatities and will suggest ways to meet them.

2. Legislation in the form of SB 6 will soon have a dramatic impact on the district's ability to fund its programs. What programs have top priority for you? Which ones have the least?

Gordon — It is essential that remedial courses be retained and even augmented to include not only math and English, but also note-taking, study habits, preventive medicine, etc. College prep courses must also be preserved, as much programs helping people to survive in these difficult times (gardening, tax preparation, home repairs, etc.). Cuts may be necessary in the administrative staff, and sabbatical leaves reserved for educational purposes only.

Nettle—With diminishing financial resources under SB 6, I shall insist that: administrative costs are minimized and limited to the staffing necessary for economical and efficient operation of the district; existing and proposed programs meet present day community educational needs; greater emphasis be placed on vocational education and on the upgrading of skills and retraining of workers for the changing job market; there be improved coordination of our district programs with those of high school districts to avoid and eliminate unnecessary and costly duplication.

Shelton — With the high levels of unemployment in this community as well as other areas of the county, at this point in time, I would place the highest priority on vocational skills, counselors and career guidance. I believe that a community college should be instrumental in helping solve the needs of the people in its community.

Tormey — A few things would rank at the top: removal of duplication in certain administrative areas; combining of certain administrative functions; increasing class size (where facilities are available) for certain lecture courses; restructuring of cafeteria management on some of the campuses; continuing the program of full cost coverage fees.

Ward — It is my desire that the state legislature and the governor will amend SB 6 to maintain our ability to fund a comprehensive range of educational programs. Whether or not that happens, my personal top priority continues to be focused on our occupational and college transfer programs, which are the basic courses of study. I assign a lower priority to the area of community service programs, unless they can pay their own way. An exception would be in occupational training, retraining and upgrading.

3. How can your district better reach out to minority people and the poor, particularly when all three schools in the district are located in the affluent western hills portions of San Mateo County?

Gordon — The community colleges should not only establish programs designed to recruit students from minority communities, but also expand existing courses in the communities. These might include organic gardening courses at convalescent homes and community centers. Other possible courses include tax preparation, nutrition and preventive medicine. More bilingual courses should be offered. Finally, field studies of the county's eco-systems should be initiated for people without previous exposure to nature.

Nettle — Use should be made of classroom space in other school districts and in public buildings to better reach disadvantaged students. Such off-campus facilities could provide ready access to programs and educational opportunities to minority and poor people not presenjltly being served at minimum cost to the district.

Shelton — Because of the location of our three campuses and the lack of adequate public transportation these three campuses have never been available to people who pay for them, the taxpayers. I propose that we take advantage of the newly formed San Mateo County Transit District to make the colleges more accessible. With imaginative leadership, we could have bus lines to all three campuses, without any cost to the college district taxpayers, since the money is already available to the transit district from the state and federal government.

Tormey — The cost of serving the less advantaged communities are usually not great, once the programs can be developed, in that usually space can be found at little or no cost in local schools, churches and other facilities and a bulk of the operating expenditures can be obtained from ADA and other state and federal sources . . . The district should coordinate with the various cities to try to provide public transportation to our colleges. The colleges are where they are, a fact which must be accepted . . . It is clear that the district, under current financial circumstances, cannot provide the transportation itself, without drastically cutting into the educational endeavor as such. The transportation must come from or in coordination with outside agencies.

Ward — It is necessary for us to reach more minority people and those who are financially unable to obtain an education. I believe the best way to do that is through the kinds of community based programs I mentioned in my answer to the first question. Nearby community colleges have been quite successful with these types of programs. Our minority enrollments have increased greatly in the last decade, to the point where we now have nearly 4,000 minority students attending the three colleges.

Broadmoor District

future of Broadmoor, the men said.

"We were afraid to say anything because people would say 'you sold out,'" McCloskey said.

But the breath of financial disaster, felt for years, recently has become hotter, McCloskey said.

Through annexation, Broadmoor's assessed valuation has plummeted from $18 million to $11 million.

If the Local Agency Formation Commission Agency (LAFCO) includes Broadmoor in Daly City's Sphere of Influence Wednesday, and if annexation of a triangle of property owned by a major oil company, an individual property owner, and the QFI stores, east of Junipero Serra Boulevard, is completed, the assessed valuation of the tiny community of Broadmoor will become smaller by about $660,000, it was explained by Savage.

Mrs. Margaret Fleischer, secretary of the Broadmoor Property Owners Association, said the nine-member board might conduct a door-to-door survey "to get the true feelings of the community."

Asked what she would do if the majority of residents contacted wanted annexation to the larger Daly City, Mrs. Fleischer said, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Her husband is a Broadmoor police officer and the couple has lived in Broadmoor 15 years.

Neither has any desire to be annexed to Daly City, although she could not offer any alternative to the police district going broke.

San Mateo County Supervisor Edward Bacciocco said he will insist the board of supervisors hold meetings in Broadmoor because of the magnitude of the matter.

"I also want to get all the facts on the cost of running (Broadmoor)," Bacciocco said.

The supervisor said he might move to have elections held to find out what the majority of the people of Broadmoor want.

"They should have a right at self-determination," he said.

Years ago, Broadmoor was more attractive to Daly City.

Daly City City Manager David Rowe said "today Broadmoor isn't all that attractive, but it isn't unattractive either."

Rowe notes that several support agencies already are provided by his city to Broadmoor — the library, recreation, sewage (the plant is in Daly City) refuse and the school districts.

Residents of Broadmoor, however, are required to pay a stiffer fee for "outside" services, such as refuse.

McCloskey and Savage said they will have to assume leadership in steering the community on an even course in coming weeks.

"I think the time has come to vote on this," McCloskey said, noting it would be the community's first such vote on the matter of joining Daly City.

"The average homeowner says today 'no annexation,' but if they knew all the facts (about the financial status) they would vote to go for Daly City," McCloskey said.

Budgets

Cox of Foster City are running for positions on the San Mateo Union High School District board and the San Mateo City School District board respectively. Both are educators.

The California Teachers Association, with headquarters in Burlingame, has begun spending large amounts of money in elections. According to the California School Boards Association, the CTA's political arm spent $327,000 in 1974's elections. Some teachers, however, are so unhappy with the practice and with certain other CTA policies and stances, they are eager to disassociate themselves from the body. In the San Mateo Union High School District, a movement has begun to sever those CTA ties.

Clearly, school districts are being forced to learn to cope with more than their share of perturbing influences. Often, these conflicts have been almost too much for the districts to handle.

In the Burlingame School District, acrimony has been the order of the day for months. The community has been unhappily divided, so much so that the board of trustees could manage only a 3-0 vote to approve the seeking of a revenue increase May 27. Two trustees dissented and abstained.

A memo from Burlingame superintendent Jack Chappell to his trustees didn't help bring the city together. In that note, Chappell provided details of strategy employed by the Palo Alto Unified School District in its successful tax election campaign of a year ago. Much of that advice stressed keeping the campaign low-profile to avoid allowing organized resistance to form.

A weekly newspaper in Burlingame attacked this whole business by concluding that, "The winning of a tax election, even if it's for schools, does not justify unethical, deceitful and low-level campaign strategies which are suggested in the report."

Burlingame's situation is precarious too because 27 per cent of its potential voters are aged 60 and over, a group not normally enthusiastic about tax boosts.

All of the districts are heavily into the thankless task of trimming personnel and programs out of their budgets. If all nine of the March revenue increases fail at the polls, the budget cuts for 1975-76 will probably total into the millions of dollars. Even if some of the measures are approved, economies still will be made in most districts.

There has been criticism of boards locally that, too often, programs targeted for elimination are precisely the ones which fuel the most controversy.

Interscholastic athletics at the high school level, for example, could be dropped by several districts if new funds are not acquired. Such a danger forces proponents of the increases to work even harder to get them passed.

In San Francisco, one board member exclaimed that, with the announcement that after-school sports would be ended this spring, the public finally began to pay attention to the fiscal plight of the schools.

Other institutions are helping to aggravate the schools' condition as well.

Some county cities want to rezone all school sites as open space, to prevent the districts from selling those properties in the future as enrollments drop. However, an opinion from the county district attorney indicates that such down-zoning on the part of the cities is probably illegal and not binding on the districts.

Even though their enrollments are dropping, too, private schools are renewing their efforts to lure students. Serra High School in San Mateo has been investigating the possibility of admitting females as regular students for the first time in its history. Serra has also launched a concerted fund drive to bolster its fiscal base.

Papan Asks Denial of SP Boost

A resolution asking that a proposed Southern Pacific Transportation Co. Peninsula commute fare increase be denied and that SP be investigated for possible perjury was to be introduced in the state Assembly last week by Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City. Papan is chairman of the Assembly Subcommittee on Peninsula Rail Service which collected a cost data from SP in storm hearings last fall after SP's request for a 111 per cent fare increase went to the state Public Utilities Commission.

An auditor general's report of its investigation of SP commute costs issued two weeks ago concluded that the figures either were to vague or were inflated to justify a 111 per cent fare increase by the PUC.

With the auditor's report as his justification, Papan has aimed his resolution — which he wants to be a concurrent resolution with one also circulating in the state Senate — right at SP officials involved in the recent survey.

The resolution asks that the auditor general report be circulated to the grand juries of San Mateo, Santa Clara and San Francisco counties for investigation of possibly perjury by the SP officials.

It also asks a similar investigation by the PUC staff and the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine if operating costs quoted to it by SP "differ significantly" from the stated commute service costs.

The resolution also asks the state PUC to consider reducing commute fares "in light of the inaccuracies" of the SP figures given to the commission.

2 Held in DC Chases

They're beginning to call police officer Les Keate "A. J." (for famed race driver A. J. Foyt) around the Daly City station after his two high speed auto chases Feb. 11.

One chase, in which the driver allegedly reached speeds in excess of 120 miles per hour, ended in a smashup and slight injury to the driver.

The other ended when the driver gave up the chase and tried to flee on foot through the Hunters Point area of San Francisco.

Both men ended up in jail.

At 8 p.m., Officer Keate began following a car northbound on Mission Street after it allegedly had driven through a red light.

When the car turned onto Silver Avenue, the driver accelerated and tried to outdistance the police car, Keate said.

Arrested after the chase, which wound through Daly City and San Francisco streets, was George W. McGee, 45, of 174 Evergreen Ave., Daly City.

Some three hours later — at 11:30 p.m. — Keate was again on patrol of Mission Street, when he began pursuing a reported stolen car.

The driver allegedly reached speeds of between 110-120 miles per hour along the street, but lost control on a curve and crashed, totally demolishing the car, police said.

Arrested was Dennis Gene Fredrick, 32, of 382 Lisbon St., San Francisco. He was treated for chest injuries at Mary's Help Hospital and released.

Police said the car had been reported stolen in San Francisco about an hour before the chase.

Bomb Threat Halts BART Trains

A bomb threat against the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) tied up trains on the Montgomery-Daly City line for more than an hour during Tuesday during rush hour Feb. 11.

Many commuters were more than an hour late getting home, and traffic jams around the Daly City BART station were more tangled than usual for that time of night.

Arrested for the bomb threat after phone company personnel allegedly were able to trace one of his calls, was James G. White of 1251 Turk, San Francisco.

A local television station (KRON-TV Ch. 4) received a call, which directed them to a public telephone booth at Laguna and Birch Streets in San Francisco.

Police said a two page, typed letter was found in the phone booth containing what they called "revolutionary rhetoric." The contents did not include any leads to the whereabouts of a bomb directed at BART.

Shortly after 6 p.m., police decided the 16th and Mission Street station was the probable location of the bomb, and evacuation of the station began.

A combined police unit of eight San Francisco and three BART officers searched the structure, but were unable to find a bomb.

At 6:46 p.m. BART began rolling its trains again, and service was back to normal shortly after 7 p.m., Bob Krahe, a BART spokesman said.

Krahe said when the threat was made the system's rush hour was over "but if the (threat) had come a half hour earlier we would really have had a people problem."

Revenue Sharing Procedures Told

A recommended procedure to assist the county Board of Supervisors in allocating revenue sharing funds with an emphasis on social service programs, was submitted to the board Feb. 11 by County Manager M. D. Tarshes.

The board scheduled discussion of the program for 2:15 p.m. at its Feb. 25 meeting.

In the past, the board has requested cities, agencies and organizations seeking revenue sharing funds to submit applications which are then reviewed by board members and allocated during county budget hearing sessions.

In his report, Tarshes proposes a procedure with four major points:

' The adoption of general criteria to guide the review of revenue sharing proposals.

' The preliminary allocation of a specific amount of general revenue sharing funds to community based social service proposals.

' The formation of a citizens' advisory council to make recommendations to the board on revenue sharing proposals in the social service category.

' A proposal that the cities allocate a portion of their revenue sharing funds for social service programs and participate in the countywide needs and priority setting system.

One important decision the board should make, Tarshes said, is whether to adopt a policy of favoring one-time expenditures over funding ongoing programs, as has been the case in the past.

Funding ongoing programs implies a commitment of continued support if programs are successful, he reported. This means that a portion of each subsequent year's revenue sharing allocation would need to be reserved for ongoing programs unless other funding sources were located, Tarshes noted.

Another consideration, he added, is that if Congress does not continue the revenue sharing program after the present five-year program expires in 1978, there would "very likely" be pressure to continue programs with county property tax financing.

On the other hand, the manager said in his report, a decision to fund only one-time expenditures limits the county's ability to meet community needs through the establishment of new programs to be operated by public or private agencies.

"It is unlikely," he said, "that a private, non-profit agency would propose undertaking a needed new program without some assurance of continued funding."

Tarshes said that the board should decide if it wishes to continue one-time funding criteria on an exclusive basis, or modify it to provide for some funding of ongoing programs.

Tarshes reported that approximately $4 million will be available in revenue sharing funds for the 1975-76 fiscal year.

He is recommending that the board make a preliminary allocation of between $600,000 and $800,000 for community based social service programs.

Supervisors Set Sites on Housing

Top priority to rehabilitation of sub-standard housing in low and moderate income areas of the county was established Feb. 11 by the County Board of Supervisors in authorizing the criteria which will be submitted to the federal government to secure $2.7 million a year in Housing and Community Development Act funds.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes said the county's proposed program must be submitted by Feb. 21.

Also in the top priority classification approved by the board are enforcement of housing codes; establishing community facilities for the elderly, day care and multi-purpose centers for the south Coastside, Pacifica, San Bruno, Half Moon Bay, and South San Francisco; and inclusion of street, sewer, water and storm drain improvements in neighborhood improvement plans.

Most of the board's discussion concerning the priority plan was devoted to the disposition of $199,000 remaining from $600,000 scheduled for allocation to 10 cities which have agreed to date to participate in the program.

Tarshes reported that the $199,000 remained after the allocations were made on a federal formula based on population. The board had the option of allocating the balance to the cities or placing it in the $900,000 the county has reserved for county projects or to assist in various city programs.

City officials were on hand to urge that the funds be disbursed to the cities. The board concurred, agreeing to include Menlo Park, which was not in the original disbursement.

The Housing and Community Development Act provides separate funding to cities of 50,000 or more population — Daly City, San Mateo and Redwood City. Menlo Park was included in the latter category because it has an on-going housing code enforcement program.

However, Menlo Park officials cited the need for additional funding for other programs.

Jim DeChaine, Belmont city manager, informed the board that the City Manager Association's city-county task force endorsed allocation of the $199,000 city fund balance to the cities, with the inclusion of Menlo Park.

Under the county formula, 50 per cent of the federal funds will be held by the county, 20 per cent allocated to participating cities and 30 per cent allocated to the already functioning neighborhood development project in East Palo Alto.

Criteria for selection of individual projects will be on the priority basis of immediate benefit to low and moderate income areas, long-term benefit to such areas, avoidance of duplicating existing city or county-wide programs, areas capable of a first-year start and concentration in program areas of housing and community facilities.

County to Hire Health Specialist

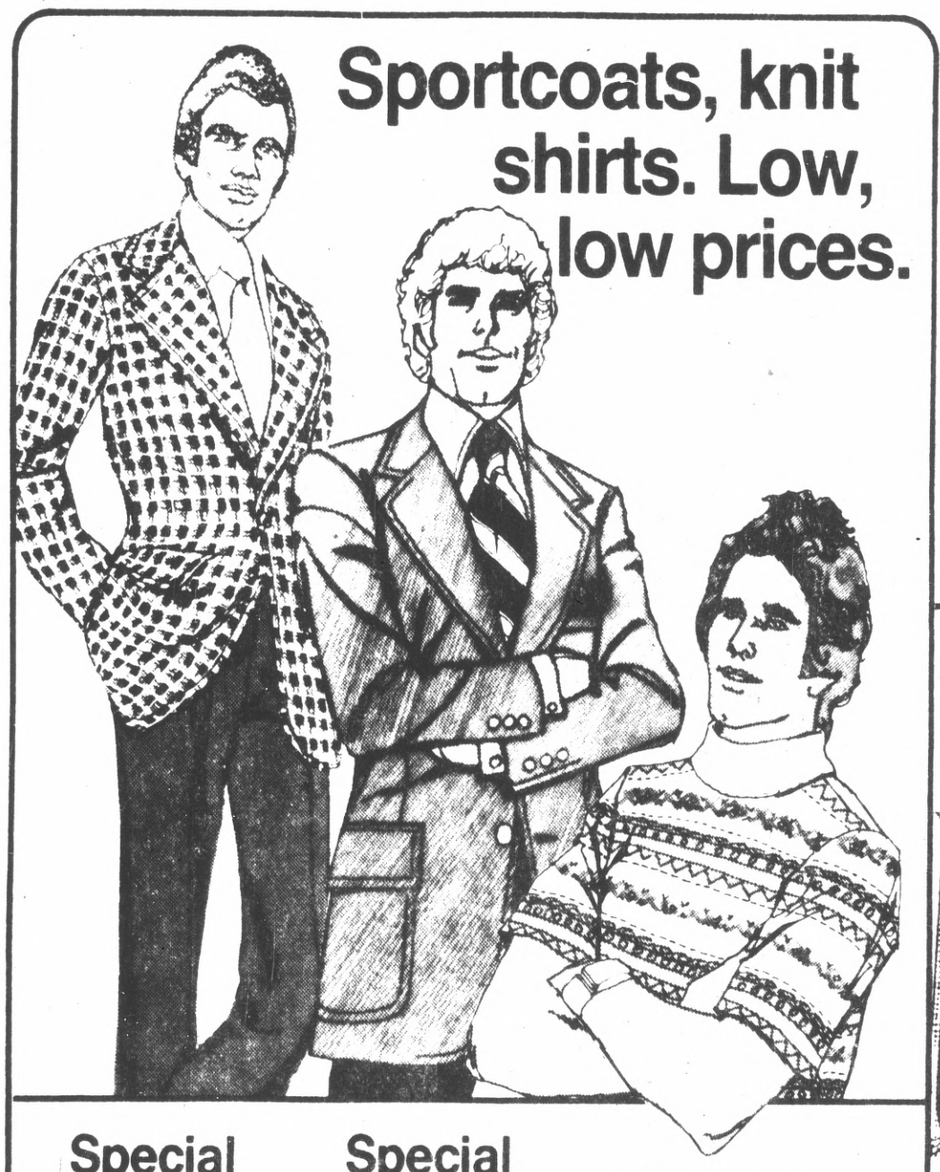

Hiring of an emergency service specialist to evaluate the emergency room services in the county's hospitals and to recommend procedural changes, particularly in the transfer of patients from private and district hospitals to Chope Community Hospital, was approved Feb. 11 by the County Board of Supervisors.

The five-month study will be done by Mrs. Anne Bergman, of Stanford, a social and public health worker, under the Social Service Division of the Department of Health and Welfare.

A total of $6,205 was allocated by the board to pay Mrs. Bergman's salary for the contract period, with $4,654 of the cost to be paid by federal funds

College Planner Named

Dr. Clifford Denney has been named director of planning for the San Mateo Community College District.

The appointment was confirmed Thursday by the district's board of trustees.

Denney, 36, is a former vice president for research and planning for Mount Hood Community College in Oregon.

Denney's salary here will be $32,000 per year.

According to chancellor Glenn Smith, Denney was chosen from among nearly 100 candidates.

Dr. Clifford Denney

The district has been searching for someone to fill the new position for months.

Another unfilled position, that of business manager, has been vacant for more than a year since Matteo Fasanaro was fired late in 1973.

The district has not been actively attempting to fill Fasanaro's position.

Smith said Thursday that, "Planning expertise is perhaps our most urgent staff need. Because of that urgency, Dr. Denney will begin work immediately."

At Mount Hood, Denney's duties included: development of off-campus programs and facilities, establishment of a computerized management information system, the conducting of a college self-study evaluation and the formulation of a series of long-range district plans.

Since last fall, Denney has been at the University of Colorado as an associate professor in science education curriculum development and evaluation.

Latins Blast County EOC Panel

A delegation of some 50 Latin-American citizens representing almost every Latin organization in the county appeared before the county's Economic Opportunity Commission in Redwood City Thursday night to complain that the Chicano and Latin communities have too long been left out of programs to help the poor.

The group, including speakers from the League of United Latin American Citizens of San Mateo County, appeared to support Miguel Angel Mendez, bilingual social planner for the planning, research and development unit of the E.O.C.

In a letter to Edward R. Becks, executive director of the county's War on Poverty, Mendez complained of "outright discrimination of people with Spanish surnames in regards to employment practices.'"

Mendez charged that the communications and dialogue between him and Becks "has been minimal" because of the "racial, cultural and linguistic differences" between the two.

The most pressing problem of the Latin community, he complained, is underemployment and unemployment.

At a meeting January 29, Mendez complained that at a "Conference on Human Services through Revenue Sharing," that the planning, research and development unit "did not even acknowledge the problem that Spanish surname people are a section of the community greatly affected by revenue sharing in San Mateo County."

Of five persons with Latin backgrounds who applied for jobs, Mendez charged that none were hired, even though one woman had a B.A. in social work.

"So now what, Mr. Becks?" Mendez asked.

He said the P.R.D. unit is made up of four caucasions, four blacks and two Chicanos, and "it wouldn't take much of a guess who the lowest paid members of the staff are. In this way, if the past is to throw any light into the future, now with rising unemployment, we know who will be the first ones to starve."

He asked that a new, fully bilingual research, planning and development unit "be formed to serve the priorities, necessities and problems of the Spanish-surnamed community of San Mateo County. This is of course . . . because the monolingual unit in existence is neither capable nor willing to even acknowledge those problems."

Two representatives of the League of United Latin American Citizens, Paul Sedillo and Raul Baca, appeared to support Mendez and point out their organization is the largest and oldest Latin organization in the United States with more than a million workers.

"I want to stress to you that we are the largest minority in the county, and we have not participated in planning," Baca complained.

"I have been sitting on this commission for four years," Mrs. Esther Talavera of South San Francisco asserted. "I have tried. But I see my people bypassed and neglected. The positions given my people are of the lowest classes. If we are going to be a community of the poor, we should be a community of all the poor."

Mrs. Gloria Rodriquez of South San Francisco, a member of the delegation, complained that members of the Chicano community do not even receive notices of meetings, although they leave their addresses.

"We don't want any more answers that this is a problem of the post office department," she asserted. "This is an old joke now. We are facing many problems. The breakfast program is being stopped. Veteran Administration benefits are being stopped."

"We come before you tonight for a very urgent need," Sedillo asserted. "We've been waiting, waiting, waiting. We are very displeased the way it has been going on. We hope we can do something for our people not only in Redwood City, but countywide. Our problem is different from the other races. Our people have never had the chance to share in the money spent in the county for years. We are far, far behind."

The complaint will be investigated.

Daniel Bravo, director of a Coastside Opportunity Center Center funded by federal funds, reported there is a great need among migrant workers for federal stipends.

"There is only one movie theatre open twice a week. These workers start drinking at very early ages. There is a need for the Economic Opportunity Commission to pick up this project."

Mrs. Kathy Haney, director of a Senior Nutrition Program, reported despite official support from South San Francisco and San Bruno there are no funds for a program in South San Francisco.

Commissioner Dolores Randall pointed out the federal government is terminating the program entirely in November, 1975, and Mrs. Helen S. Kerwin, commission chairman, said there is a need to look for additional funds.

Mrs. Randall complained that the county has never organized a Community Manpower program, although there is a need for such a program.

Becks recommended the county be asked for funds, although he warned there is no guarantee the program will get any.

Commissioners also discussed the need for funds to train homemakers who must have eight hours of training a week for three weeks at a convalescent home before they are allowed to visit homes and help the disabled and aged.

Pacifica Mulls Cable Offer

An announcement that live local programming would be revived on Channel 8 in Pacifica at a meeting last week failed to cool the anger of the City Council.

J. C. Sparkman, president of Telecommunication, Inc., owner of the Pacifica cable station, announced that starting Feb. 14, programs would be taped and broadcast on Channel 8. By the following Friday, there would be live programming presented, Sparkman said.

Programs will be taped in a small studio at the Pacifica TCI office.

Studio 70, a larger facility, the closure of which caused a city-wide furor last week, will remain closed.

Operating the new studio will be Andy Trentacosta, described as "a long-time employe from our San Carlos operation."

Sparkman said he is not opposed to a proposal made by a committee to save local programming in the city, that a non-profit corporation be established to handle program origination.

Mayor Aubrey Lumley appointed Councilman Stan Farber and Councilwoman Janice Fulford to a committee to meet with TCI management in preparation for the March 5 meeting when the future of cable television in Pacifica will be considered.

"I assume we'll always have cable television in Pacifica," Farber said angrily. "The question is what company will operate it."

Layton Jones, local high school teacher, complained that his high school class in television production, has conducted class in Studio 70 since the semester began.

Since the closing of Studio 70, he said, his class has not been able to meet.

Studio 70, he reported, houses a large number of uncompleted student projects. He asked that programs for local schools, for senior citizens, recreation and other local causes be continued at the studio.

Jones criticized the studio at the TCI Pacifica office as "too small for almost any purpose."

Jones, who had been a participant in Studio 70 before TCI purchased Pacifica Cable Co., cited charges of "decent management" apparently made against former manager Grady Hesters and his assistant Margie Ramirez (the reason for the firing was never disclosed publicly, except that it was for economic reasons.) Hes-Hesters was a fine manager, he declared.

Some 50 young people sat through the four hour meeting waiting for the issue of cable television to be discussed by the council.

"My concern," Farber declared, "is the enthusiasm of the young adults who took part in the studio. The studio is more than equipment. It is the four to five years it took to build it up — and it took TCI 15 minutes to padlock it. I am not happy. I am not going to be the most pleasant person in the room to meet with," he warned Sparkman.

Russell Held To Answer

Kenneth F. Russell, of San Bruno, was held to answer in South San Francisco Municipal Court Feb. 11 on a charge of murdering his boyhood friend, John Yazolino in Pacifica Jan. 23.

Russell will appear in Superior Court at Redwood City Feb. 24. He is being held at the San Mateo County Jail, without bail.

Russell has pleaded not guilty to the murder charge.

Police allege that Russell confronted Yazolino near his friend's home in Pacifica and fatally stabbed him.

Just 10 days before the slaying Russell had been released from Atascadero State Hoyspital for the Criminally Insane.

San Mateo County Supervisors have called for a state investigation into what they believe was Russell's premature release from the hospital.

Republicans Form Six Committees

San Mateo County Republican Central Committee Chairman Russ Collier announced early this month the formation of six committees that will work to increase the impact of the Republican Party in the county. The committees, together with a description of duties, the chairman, and a partial list of members, follows:

LABOR — To increase contacts between laboring men and women and the Republican Pary, in order to assess the feelings of labor more accurately and to increase participation of all types of working people in the Republican Party.

Chairman is Gib Rodli, candidate for the 19th Assembly District in last November's election and a government relations consultanta in Burlingame.

Members are Hazel Campbell, Pacifica, former Menlo Park City Councilman George Little and Jim Tormey, San Mateo.

YOUTHS — To make available to a maximum number of schools within the county the ideals of Republicanism, through a program of speakers, seminars, and literature distriubution.

Chairman is Mike Torrigino, Pacifica, a student at University of San Francisco, an associate with John Geary Realty of Pacifica, and area director of the California College Republicans.

Members are Bob Naylor, Burlingame, and Jim Demas, Stanford University.

PRECINCT — To direct the major precinct efforts of the party, including registration and get-out-the-vote drives.

Chairman is Hilde Rooth, Burlingame, former president, San Mateo County Federation of Republican Women, former member of state precinct steering committee.

Members are Bill Clifford, San Carlos, Charles Harper, Menlo Park, Loretta Kitt, Belmont, Bob Naylor, ex officio, representing Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, and Pete Schrager, Burlingame.

FINANCE — To raise the money — through dinners, special events, and direct solicitations — necessary to carry on the work of the other committees.

Chairman is Dave Houston, Hillsborough, engineering consultant, director of the San Mateo Red Cross, director of MicroMagnetic Industries, and director of the San Francisco General Hospital.

Vice-chairmaen are Gordon Poole, Woodside, and Fred Scribner, San Mateo.

SPEAKERS — To develop themes, to train speakers to assign speakers, and to solicit speaking engagements.

Members are Ron Conway, Isabella Dunnn and Rodli.

INFORMATION — To disseminate information about the activities of the Central Committee, and about the principles and activities of the Republican Pary in general. Emphasis will be on press relations and cooperation with the other committees to maximize the party's effect in these special areas.

Chairman is Brien Benson, Belmont, director, Hoover Institution Press, Stanford University; vice-president of San Mateo County Republican Alliance.

Members are Tom Constantino, Foster City, and Jim Bouick, San Carlos.

Pacifica Council Reviews U.S. Grant Application

An application for a federal grant of $414,968 was reviewed by the Pacifica City Council last week.

The study was continued to Feb. 24 to allow the public to comment more on the application.

The money would be the first of a three-year grant, with much of the first year to go to planning.

The money would pay for a housing inspector, a rehabilitation specialist, a housing counselor, and a community participation coordinator.

A special census, considered essential to help identify the various housing and social problems, is budgeted for $69,148.

A field office would house a counseling center and a meeting place for a Housing and Community Development Task Force.

An intensive study of family housing programs is planned, including a survey of lower income families, senior citizens and handicapped. A second and third-year housing improvement program would be developed, with phase-in of inspections, housing assistance, including grants and loans.

The community participation coordinator would help organization of child care and senior citizen groups in developing plans to expand services in the community.

Rehabilitation of a nursery school at Pomo Park, conversion of a hardware store in Pacific Manor and the Long Table Restaurant in Pedro Point to senior citizen facilities, and construction of walkways for the handicapped, are among plans being considered.

Councilman Stan Farber called it "our wish-list." Mayor Aubrey Lumley said there is no assurance the city will get the money.

Council Member Janice Fulford urged citizens to write in suggestions on improving Pacifica's housing and services.

Roy Nourse of the Community Development Department presented maps showing where certain problem concentrations exist — young, the old, and poor.

Much backing for the grant was received from members of the audience, although certain fears were expressed.

Virginia Jaeger, president of Pacific Highlands Residents Association, suggested the city consider buying a home in her area and converting it into a youth center, with offices for the YWCA and Family Service.

John Curtis of the Sharp Park Improvement Club, urged funds be sought for an overall environmental impact review to aid a new General Plan. He suggested funds for a sea wall be obtained. He expressed concern over the code enforcement program — a program several others also said they feared — as possibly leading to property clearance.

Ryan New Watchdog of CIA

Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, has been appointed to the House Foreign Affairs Committee's Oversight Subcommittee, whose job is to supervise Central Intelligence Agency activities.

Oversight has been assigned all foreign intelligence supervision, including the CIA but made especially noteworthy by recent revelations of alleged CIA domestic undercover work, which has been expressly forbidden by law.

Ryan also is author of a CIA amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act of last year which requires the President to notify Congress in advance of any secret CIA foreign operations.

The new Oversight is a part of the reorganization of the Foreign Affairs subcommittees, with duties divided on a functional rather than geographical basis.

Ryan also will be on the FAC's International Operations Subcommittee.

He will continue on the House Government Operations Committee.

Ryan Eyes Two U.S. Welfare Bills

Several bills and resolutions that would oppose or change current government welfare policy requirements are being worked on by Congressman Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo.

Ryan said last week he plans to introduce a bill that would repeal the outside earnings limitation for Social Security recipients and is cosponsoring a resolution opposing President Ford's plan for a five per cent ceiling on Social Security benefit increases and a bill that would kill a projected increase in the price of food stamps.

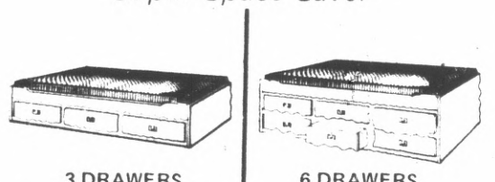

The outside earnings limitation was increased from $2,400 to $2,520 this January. In 1974 some 6.4 per cent of eligible seniors had some or all benefits cut off because they earned over the limit, Ryan said, adding that the rule points up a major inequity in the system "because the law permits wealthy elders to earn millions in interest and dividends and still collect full Social Security payments."

The five per cent limit would be a cutback from a nine per cent increase due soon to meet the inflationary spiral and would only place an extra burden on those with little income and none on those more comfortably fixed, Ryan explained.

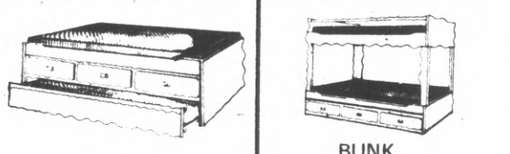

The saving on food stamps by a price increase would be $650 million a year, Ryan acknowledged, but called this "miniscule in comparison to other budget costs."

The food stamp bill passed the House overwhelmingly Feb. 4, indicating, Ryan said, "that Congress is in no mood to begin balancing the budget by forcing those least able to pay to bear the heaviest burden."

1974, despite the problems presented to the economy in general, was a good year for customers of Home Savings and for the association. Assets grew to over $5¼ Billion. Again more savers moved to America's Largest and they earned an all-time record in interest paid, $259,447,000. Continuing the policy of increasing service and convenience, 5 new offices were added and 5 more were enlarged, all proving again that... in trying times as well as in good times... for family savings there is no place like Home.

BART Increases Excursion Fare

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District has begun a program to increase its excursion fare from 60 cents to $1.

"The increase will be implemented in stages, and will not be in effect in all stations immediately," reported BART Acting General Manager, L.D. Dahmns.

"The process of modifying our automatic fare collection equipment for the excursion fare increase can only be accomplished over a period of time," Dahms explained. "We are, therefore, beginning our adjustments at stations where the excursion fares are most frequently utilized, and will phase in other stations on that priority basis." Dahms said that the $1 excursion fare would be standard throughout the entire BART system on or before March 8, 1975.

Stations already charging the $1 excursion fare are Powell Street, Montgomery Street, Walnut Creek, 19th Street Oakland, Concord and Berkeley.

By the end of the week all San Francisco stations plus Oakland's Fruitvale station will have received modifications.

Tentatively scheduled for the week of Feb. 17 will be the Daly City, Oakland West, Lake Merritt, Coliseum, San Leandro, Bay Fair and Hayward stations.

During the last week in February equipment should be adjusted in South Hayward, Union City, Pleasant Hill, Lafayette, and Oakland's City Center/12th Street and MacArthur stations. And, following in the first week of March will be the Orinda, Rockridge, Richmond, El Cerrito Plaza and Del Norte, North Berkeley and Ashby stations.

Acting General Manager Dahms stated that signs announcing the fare changes will be prominently displayed at the information booths of all affected stations as the changes occur, and that station agents will make frequent public address announcements at appropriate locations. He urges all BART passengers to consult with their station agent if in doubt.

The excursion fare increase is part of a new six-point policy on BART's fare structure recently adopted by the BART Board of Directors. Already instituted is extending travel without additional charge to all chaperoned children 4-years-old and under.

'Everybody Is Very Friendly'

A Chauffeur for the Aged

"If you have free time, it's more rewarding to spend it helping somebody, doing something useful, than to spend that time in a shopping center . . ."

Red Cross volunteer driver Virginia Peddie, a South San Francisco resident for 17 years is a full-time housewife who enjoys utilizing her free time driving elderly South San Francisco and north county residents to doctor appointments, physical therapy sessions and clinic visits.

Mrs. Peddie, drives an official Red Cross vehicle, on an average of two times per week, to destinations all over the Bay Area from San Francisco to Palo Alto.

North county residents in need of transportation call the South San Francisco Red Cross Service Center after being referred by a social worker, doctor, clergy or other agency.

Those utilizing Red Cross Motor Service transportation, which is offered through every Red Cross office in San Mateo and San Francisco counties, must be able to walk unassisted. Drivers are never asked to do any lifting.

All volunteer drivers have taken a Red Cross First Aid course and a driving test in a Red Cross vehicle.

When the South San Francisco Red Cross Service Center receives a referred transportation request, Virginia, or one of the seven other volunteer drivers currently on the file at the Service Center, will be contacted.

"They call me two or three days in advance of the needed ride," said Virginia. "If I'm not free on a particular day I tell the Red Cross when they call and they find another driver. I need to be free sometimes because I take care of my granddaughter."

Virginia became a Red Cross Motor Services volunteer three months ago when she saw the Red Cross van and a display at Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City.

"I walked over and asked what I could do to help," said Virginia. "It's like a hobby — something to get me out of the house once in awhile, a change of scenery."

And what is the responses of those whom Virginia Peddie and other Red Cross Motor Services volunteers are able to transport? According to Virginia, "Everybody is very friendly . . . and very grateful."

The Red Cross is always in need of volunteers to help in carrying out the many services performed every day in the community. If you are interested in being a Motor Services volunteer driver like Virginia Peddie, or in helping Red Cross by volunteering during your free time, call 589-5864 or 343-4561.

The Choraliers, a performing chorus, will present its P.T.A. Founder's Day program "Songs of the Gilded Age" Feb. 19 at Daniel Webster School and Feb. 20 at F.D.R. School. Performances at both schools will begin at 7:30 p.m.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

There are those who say that February is a nothing month, a dull, wet lull between the fun of the holidays and the joy of Easter. I can't agree with this. Why some of my best friends were born in February. I will concede that, as the winds blow and the rains fall, we could use something to brighten these days. Winning a trip to Hawaii, the Sweepstakes, new furniture for the whole house, any of these small things would help dispel gloom.

I have no magic to help win these prizes, but I can offer a couple of prize winning recipes that will brighten mealtime.

JIFFY CASSEROLE DINNER

1 package au gratin potatoes mix
1 (9-ounce box frozen French style green beans, thawed
1 (1½ ounce) envelope onion soup mix
1 (6½ ounce) can tuna

Follow the basic recipe on the box of au gratin potato mix, but change the size of casserole to 2½ quarts.

Stir in the 9 ounces thawed green beans, envelope onion soup mix and one-can drained tuna. Bake in 375-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes, until beans are cooked. Serve with crisp green salad and buttered biscuits. Serves 4 to 6.

This desert is an easy to make substitute for apple pie, layering apples and cheese between a crumb base and topping.

CHEESY DAPPER APPLE SQUARES

1½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup butter or margarine
8 slices (8-oz. pkg.) American or Cheddar cheese slices
2½ cups (3 medium) peeled, sliced cooking apples
¾ cup sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

In large mixing bowl combine the one and one-half cups each flour and graham cracker crumbs, one cup brown sugar and one-half teaspoon soda. Cut in the three-fourths cup butter until crumbly; reserve 1½ cups crumb mixture for topping. Press remaining crumbs into ungreased 13x9-inch baking pan. Place eight cheese slices over crumbs. Toss the 2½ cups apples with ¾ cup sugar until well coated. Place apples evenly over cheese slices; sprinkle with reserved crumb mixture. Sprinkle half cup chopped nuts over top. Bake in 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes until deep golden brown. Serve warm; if desired, top with whipped cream or ice cream.

If desired, a 1-pound, 4-ounce can pie sliced apples, drained, can be substituted for cooking apples.

Serves 12 to 15.

Skyline's New Word Processing Program

The Business Department of Skyline College in San Bruno took an additional innovative step this Fall, with the introduction of a Word Processing Program.

Business instructor Grace Heringer directs the word processing center which is housed on the third floor of the Business Building. She explained that the three word processing machines allow letters which are phoned into the center and taped, to be duplicated in multiple, error-free letters, all of which look like the original.

The machines which resemble large typewriters with detached copying units are operated by student trainees. Upon completion of the program, these students will qualify as Certified Word Processors. Currently the program has a capacity of 20 beginning and 20 advanced students.

Because she believes her students learn best "while they're getting the work out," many campus personnel will not have to spend extra hours typing duplicate official correspondence. These three machines, which were purchased for $40,000, are capable of typing duplicate letters with individual name adjustment at a rate of 185 words a minute. At present, the center can reproduce letters on the same day they are received.

Skyline College is the first college to offer an instruction-production combination in this field. "I believe that the two should be merged," Heringer explained. "It is unfair to spend this much money and not utilize the machine to its fullest extent." Last semester she visited a number of other colleges to learn whether such a program would be feasible for Skyline.

"By the end of the spring semester, we hope to have the faculty and staff familiarized with the use of the telephone-tape unit. Those who have used it to date have been pleased with the results," Heringer added.

Len Herzstein, a business instructor agreed. The first batch of letters he requested "turned out excellently. They looked very professional and there were no errors," he said. Cosmetology Department Secretary Lois Loveland admitted, "The center saved her days in the preparation of letters offering complimentary cosmetology services."

Ms. Heringer is now compiling Learning Activity Packets for spelling, punctuation, machine transcription and proof reading.

"There is no need to lock a student who comes here into a semester program," she said. These packets allow the word processing students to progress at their own pace, a feature Ms. Heringer stresses.

Student John Leah, of San Mateo, spends four to five hours a week in the center. He anticipated it will take him much less than semester's time to fulfill his goal of learning how to use the machines. Eventually, he plans to teach others how to use them. "I think they're great and may become as common as the electric typewriter," he said.

Leahy noted that all the bugs haven't been worked out of the machine yet to his satisfaction. "For example, it is much more difficult to type on one than on a manual typewriter. The 'keyboard feel' slows you down," he said.

Ms. Heringer said word processors have "been around for 10 years but there's been a particularly rapid growth the last five." She believes, there is "no limit" to the job market. A trained word processor can earn $700 a month or better as compared to a secretary who may start at $500 and a typist at $450.

ON THE JOB LEARNING

Word processing students at Skyline College learn the basics of multi-production of error-free letters in one of the newest business programs at the San Bruno campus.

The story also stated that Victor Brincat, the president of the school, "expects to receive" the accreditation "in the minimum time — two years."

Kenneth D. McCloskey, administrator of The Committee of Bar Examiners has, informed The Post: "No application for accreditation has been submitted by or on behalf of the Magna Carta University's School of Law."

A Month's Groceries

Feeding a Family of 3 for $75

By RO LOGRIPPO
Post Staff Writer

Give Michael Handler $75, and that's plenty for him to feed his family of three for a month.

What's more, after spending that amount of money, he'll have four or five bags of groceries in his cart each week when he leaves the check-out stand.

How does the Redwood City food economics lecturer and writer manage to do it?

Are he and his wife and their two-year-old daughter subsisting on rice and beans?

Hardly!

The Handlers' diet includes a variety of meat, dairy products and produce.

Even beer is occasionally included on their grocery list.

What, then, is his secret to cheap living?

"I'm a bargain hunter," he explained during a private interview with the Post at his home.

"I check the newspaper ads to see what's on sale, plan the weekly menus accordingly, and shop at three or four markets close to my house to take advantage of each store's loss leaders. (Loss leaders are those items sold at or below market cost. Truly bargains, they are advertised heavily to entice shoppers into the market.)

According to Handler's statistics, loss leaders generally comprise one percent of the products stocked in a market. "There are approximately 12,000 items sold in large food chain stores," he says, "and normally 100 to 120 of those items are on sale."

It's not impossible or even difficult to live off the loss leaders, Handler says, because they include the same variety of products stocked in the average cupboard. "Count the number of different items in your kitchen," he challenges," and you'll probably find no more than 100."

Karen and Michael Handler of Redwood City check the market ads weekly before shopping for their groceries. By patronizing three or four markets and buying only the sale items, they are able to feed their family of three for $75 a month.

Handler admits that many of the loss leaders are off-brands and off-cuts of meat, but he prides himself on being open minded and willing to try new products and dishes.

"Don't be afraid to experiment with new foods, ideas and recipes," he says. "Chances are your family is bored with some of the meals you have been preparing," he suggests, "but they don't want to hurt your feelings, so they haven't bothered to tell you about it."

Among the "experimental" foods in the Handler refrigerator the day this reporter conducted the interview were turkey thighs. Other meats he purchased that week on special included veal roast and sirloin roast from which he sliced steaks for yet another meal.

Buying off-brands doesn't bother Handler in the least. "Tests prove most people can't identify the brand they supposedly prefer when they taste that product blindfolded," he says. The only item he buys by brand is razor blades.

To keep their food costs down, the Handlers admit they exercise their willpower.

"My wife, Karen, and I strictly adhere to our shopping list," says Handler, "and we never buy anything that isn't on it, even if it's a super sale item."

Karen Handler ocassionally has given in to temptation, however, but only in a small way. "I bought a candy bar at the check-out stand last week," she confided.

Moreover, the Handlers steer clear of coupons. "I've never used a coupon in my life," says Handler. "They only induce you to buy what you don't need."

The Handlers also resist the impluse to stockpile. "I can't be convinced a hundred pounds of potatoes is a worthwhile investment," he reasons.

Handler adds that although the family never eats out during the week (and, since he works out of his home, they eat three meals a day there), they do entertain company at dinner at least once a week. "And there's always enough for second helpings," he points out.

Mike and Karen Handler are the first to admit they haven't always followed their current lifestyle. He confesses to bachelorhood days filled with whimsical purchases, and she agrees her past was not purely economically geared.

Both decided to change all that for two reasons.

Since their marriage, the couple has traveled extensively. Their trips to impoverished countries drove home the fact that many people do not have enough to eat while others, incuding Americans, over indulge themselves.

When the Handlers returned from their last vacation eight months ago, they started comparing Peninsula shopping notes with their friends and neighbors. The result of their studies, which are ongoing, prompted publication last fall of the Consumers' Newsletter. Published in San Mateo every other Wednesday, CN is a four-page bulletin which reports on all kinds of San Mateo businesses — praising some, rebuking others — and offers advice on topics ranging from the proposed tax cut to gasoline shortages and home rental services. Several issues have been devoted to grocery shopping guidelines.

As a writer for the Consumers' Newsletter, Handler has been accepting speaking engagements to share his money-saving tips. A firm believer in practicing what he preaches, the bargain seeker devised his "$75-a-month" plan to feed a family of three to prove his ideas were plausible.

Only three items were eliminated from the Handlers' food lists once they began the project. No-no purchases included soft drinks, potato chips and packaged cookies and cakes. (Karen Handler compensated for the loss of the latter by preparing her own baked goods from scratch.)

Handler admits, through the Consumers' Newsletter, that his plan has met with some criticism. Skeptics have attacked it on the basis that "it costs too much money in gasoline" to be selective and shop at various markets. He retorts, "If gasoline prices rise to $5 per gallon, it is still economically feasible to shop in the manner we described."

What answer does Handler give to those who charge that his plan is too time consuming?

"We don't buy that," he said. "If you pro-rate the savings involved and divide that into the little time that it takes to follow this method, the resulting figure is very high. In all cases, it is certainly a figure equal to those of us who receive hourly compensation."

Handler guarantees those who adopt his measures "an immediate savings of 20 per cent on your overall food budget." He adds, "that could be an equivalent of an immediate five per cent raise in wages. As your new shopping habits develop and become more refined, the percentage of savings on food will increase proportionately regardless of rising food prices."

Does Handler believe every consumer should take his food budget plan to heart?

"There is absolutely no reason why the average family cannot cut their overall food costs dramatically by just exercising common sense and following a few simple guidelines," he writes in the newsletter.

"American shoppers like to pride themselves on being bright, astute, clever and cunning," he continues.

"But the fact remains that they are naive, gullible, and very much predictable. There is an adage that is repeated in board rooms of large corporations and advertising agencies, 'The public will buy anything as long as it is attractively packaged and heavily advertised.'

"Our contention," he says in summation, "is that when the cost gets out of proportion in relation to the earning ability, it is then time to re-evalute our priorities and a make the necessary changes whenever possible."

Ballet Theater Sets 16 Performances

American Ballet Theatre — the country's most widely acclaimed and busiest touring dance ensemble — will have sixteen performances in their Bay Area visit from March 3 through 16.

ABT will bring its impressive roster of principal dancers for their 1975 tour. Heading the list is Mikhail Baryshnikov, the Leningrad-Kirov star who defected in June of last year and is now one of the most famous of the young world dance stars. Sharing the spotlight are Natalia Makarova, the 1970 Kirov Ballet defector, Gelsey Kirkland, former principal with the New York City Ballet, and Cynthia Gregory, former San Francisco Ballet principal.

Casting for the tour is still incomplete, but will include other principals who command impressive applause: Terry Orr, Eleanor D'Antuono, Ivan Nagy, Sallie Wilson, Jonas Kage, Ted Kivitt and John Prinz.

In all, 21 ballets will be presented, including three favorite full length ballets — "Giselle," "Coppelia" and "Swan Lake." David Blair's "Swan Lake" is probably the ensemble's greatest full-length achievement.

Samuel Chandler

Democracy At Work

They were patriots, revolutionaries; founders of our nations political philosophy. Thomas Jefferson and John Adams. For most of their adult lives they were good friends, but their conflicting views represent the deep cleavages that have always been present in American life and thought.

In their letters they exchanged their views in terms that are still meaningful although 200 years separate their time from ours. They spoke of religious freedom, civil liberties, and world peace. Adams told Jefferson that these could be obtained by "cultivation of men of industry and wealth together with virtue and talents."

Jefferson called Adam's men of industry and wealth, "pseudo-aristoi." He wrote that wisdom, beauty, good humor and politeness create a natural aristocracy that the people will discover. He wrote his faith that the citizens of the country with free elections would separate the natural "aristoi" from the pseudo-aristoi as wheat is separated from the chaff. He said, "In general they "(the citizens)" will elect the really good and wise."

Pursuing the argument Adams echoed the sentiments of Noah Webster: "Too much health is a disease, which often requires a very strict regimen; too much liberty is the worst of tyranny . . . / If all men attempt to become masters, the most of them would necessarily become slaves in the attempt; and could every man on earth possess millions of joes (a gold coin) every man would be poorer than any man is now and infinitely more wretched."

Jefferson's answer to this kind of thinking was "Every one, by his property, or his satisfactory situation, is interested in the support of law and order. And such men may safely and advantageously reserve to themselves a wholesome control over their public affairs . . ."

PERHAPS JEFFERSON trusted the common man too much; surely Adams placed too much trust in the rich and the powerful.

Jefferson and Adams died the same day but their debate lives on. It is part of President Fords' debate with Congress, part of labor negotiations. They were certainly part of the last presidential election and part of the life of Northern San Mateo County.

Their example of friendship in spite of philosophical differences and even political enmity is a picture of strong-minded Americans who make democracy work. Surely their example should be cultivated by Americans as they approach the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, a document that Jefferson write and Adams refined.

Their story may be found in a book entitled "Adams and Jefferson: The Story of A Friendship." Its author, John Murray Allison, has produced a book that critics have called superb reading.

Since 1966 many have read it and memorized Jefferson's epigram that follow the preface "I find friendship to be like old wine, raw when new, ripened with age, the true old mans' milk and restorative cordial."

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Enrico Romano For Centerfold Spread

Enjoyed a visit with my old pal and restaurateur Enrico Romano, last week, and hasten to report that the "king" never looked better. Enrico, along with his neighbor Nick Gust, has been a member of the "Bright Lights" pages for the past 16 years, not to mention a short span with the San Francisco News before our advent into San Mateo. "Rick," who has always been known as a swinger, almost caused this scribe to "flip his pizza" when he remarked, "I've been paying attention lately to the magazine with male centerfold pictures. How does a guy get with it?" Enrico, my friend, the only trunks you have been in lately have been shipped by air, boat, or bus. Our advice to you is to centerfold your attention around your Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach and keep punching that cash register . . . Scotty Campbell's has always attracted luminaries in show business, and leaders in the business and political worlds are steady patrons of this successful Redwood City favorite. Sunday seems to be "family night," with "clans" enjoying the feasting and the hospitable warmth of their surroundings.

SMOOTH SOUNDING

Kurt Alan, versatile singer and musician, is currently fronting his own trio in the Ivory Coast Lounge of Holiday Inn, Belmont, Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Deem Sum, exquisite Chinese pastries, is a house specialty at Superior Palace. This San Francisco restaurant is a splendid new building constructed by restaurant owner T. W. Eng. A staff of top-notch professional Chinese chefs prepare the luncheon and dinner specialties. Banquet facilities, and a cocktail lounge.

With the coupon, which appears in The Post today, you can buy one regular Jumbo Jack or one Jumbo Jack with cheese and get another one free. This coupon is good until February 28. . . . Jackie Phillips, who is billed as the "Crazy Redhead," has returned to the cast of female impersonators at Finocchio's, a "must-see" nitery for visitors to San Francisco. Four shows nightly, Wednesdays through Sundays . . . The elegant Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery in downtown San Francisco is a popular dining spot for sports stars, and there is always someone famous dining here. The other night, baseball great Willie McCovey graciously signed autographs for his many fans between bites of his Pay-By-The-Ounce steak . . . Ski buffs and Nevada fun seekers driving to South Lake Tahoe receive a substantial bonus value when taking advantage of Nevada Tours' transportation opportunities. The Tahoe Drive-Up Package, which is available seven days a week, offers a total bonus value of $10 per person ($6 cash, $1 food credit, $3 cocktails) and costs only $10.95 per person (double occupancy) for one night. Shirt Tail Offers Ultimate In Dining

A haven for Stanford graduates for the past few years has been the Shirt Trail restaurant in Palo Alto, which is also an Adrian Stickney enterprise. This elegant dinner house offers an extensive menu of steaks, prime rib, Italian dishes and seafood. In the lounge, you will always find cordial conversation and top-drawer entertainment. Currently appearing nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays is Valarian . . . Lehr's Greenhouse garden restaurant is San Francisco's biggest user of Hawaiian papayas. Owner Murry Lehr flies in 72 cases of Hawaii's finest fresh papayas every week. They're used in all those luscious luncheon salads, and featured on Lehr's gourmet salad bar at dinnertime . . . A great place to unwind after a long day at the office is the comfortable cocktail lounge at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant. Hors d'oeuvres are served from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. nightly, and the mixologists are friendly and professionals at their trade . . . Aided by son Chuck, Nick Gust has maintained an unusually attractive restaurant domain at Rockaway Beach Pacifica — Nick's Restaurant and Lounge, The Moonraker, and Captain Charles. The steady growth of the clientele and fame of these eating places has made this coastside area a "must visit." The emphasis is on food, comfort and relaxation. And to help you relax Wednesdays through Sundays at Nick's are the velvet tones of Jimmy Payer, who comes direct from a lengthy engagement at the San Francisco Hilton.

Sebastiani Zinfandel, 5th

An ideal red wine to serve with Chuck Roast that is featured this week would be Sebastiani Zinfandel.

This is a medium, bodied red wine with a berry-like bouquet. The pleasing qualities of this wine can be best appreciated when it is served at room temperature.

RESERVATIONS are still being taken for Girl Scout Sunday's pancake breakfast set for March 9 in the Serramonte High cafeteria by Mrs. Kathy Galvin (584-0895) and for the ecumenical services to follow in the early afternoon by Mrs. Louise Courpet (992-0768).

THINKING DAY celebration in Daly City is set for Feb. 22 in the Serramonte High School Gymnasium, with advance reservations by troops with Mrs. Caroline Futrell, requested. Cadette Troop 716 led by Mary Ann Dale, will present the international celebration of Scouting program.

Scouts are requested to wear their uniforms, and tennis shoes are required. Contributions to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund will be collected, and no troop will be admitted without advance reservations due to the size of the room.

Cubmobile Race Planned at Linda Mar

Cubbing roundtable for Northern District, held recently at Los Cerritos School, was themed Cub Scout circus. Webelos activity featured showman events, according to Mrs. Lola Ingalsbe of San Bruno.

A Scouter's pin was given to Dennis Perotti, Pack 296 committee chairman who also received a program award. Sparklers, games, tricks, songs and ceremonies were shared by adults in Cubbing.

Patterns of animal puppets and matching name cards were distributed. Fred West of Portola District invited packs to participate in their March 15 Cubmobile Race scheduled, in their Linda Mar area.

Saturday, Feb. 22, Baden Powell's birthday, at 7:30 a.m. in the Scouting Center in San Mateo, a camp sign-up breakfast is scheduled.

President's cabinet, executive committee meets Tuesday, Feb. 25.

SP Asks Own Study On Costs

Southern Pacific Transportation Co. Wednesday said it has asked the Price Waterhouse and Co. certified public accountant firm to do an independent study of the SP's Peninsula commute train operations costs.

An SP spokesman said the firm would identify and separate commute expenses for other costs of running the railroad, those findings to be made public and used later to support the SP request for a 20 per cent fare increase now before the state Public Utilities Commission.

The 20 per cent is an interim hike pending a 111 per cent boost asked for last year and which may take the rest of this year to determine.

But the SP announcement made no mention of it possibly being a reaction to a resolution offered Wednesday by Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, asking the PUC not only to deny any fare increase but to study a possible decrease.

Vocational Office Opens at Skyline

A new Vocational Assistance office to aid Skyline College students in seeking a broader knowledge of their employment goals has been developed by the college's Cooperative Education Department, according to Vocational Specialist Don Cappa.

"In the specialized world, it's better for an individual to concentrate in a specific field of endeavor rather than try to cover all the bases," Cappa explained.

Services provided by the Vocational Assistance office will include cooperation with a cross section of businesses in the local community. These have agreed to allow interested students to come to an employer's office for personal interview to gain further knowledge of advancement requirements.

In addition, on-campus seminars by employers, sports figures, television and radio personalities will be scheduled for students to help them in the further exploration of their goals.

Serra Slates Musical Spoof

"How the West Was Fun," an original musical spoof of popular Westerns, will be presented by Peninsula-Deborah Hadassah at Serra High School, 20th AKVE., San Mateo on two successive Saturday evenings, March 8 and 15.

Each performance will be followed by a wine and cheese reception with the cast. In addition, as a community service, there will be a special Sunday afternoon performance at reduced prices for senior citizens, on March 16 which will include refreshments.

Proceeds from these performances will be used to advance the research and lifesaving work of the Hadassah Medical Center in Jerusalem.

Mrs. Alan Klein of San Mateo (known as Ronnie Klein in the theatrical field) has written and is directing this musical and will be remembered for her previous hit shows such as "The Female of the Species" and "Mirror, Mirror."

Sylvia Kamin, a concert pianist affiliated with the San Mateo Chamber Music Society, is doing the musical arrangements and will be the pianist for the musical numbers rendered by Rick Hearn's "Fountainhead" group. Berle Davis of the Dance Arts Center at Crystal Springs will be guest choreographer. Ronnie Klein, inviting community participation, has obtained the services of the San Mateo Recreation Department for makeup, and Pat Young's art students at Borel Middle School will build the sets.

Mrs. Harry Verby of San Mateo, who is chairing this event, has drawn on the best talents of Hadassah's Peninsula membership of well over 500 women to make up a cast of more than 30, and to set up a gifted group of costume designers. Assisting Mrs. Very in the various aspects of management and production are Mesdames William Greer, Paul Davidow, Joseph Mann, Alec Stern, Neal Sutton of San Mateo; Harry Zabin, Morris Spiegelman, Steven Chandler, Alan Farber of Foster City; Burton Miller, Michael Cowan of Hillsborough; Irving Goodman, Ms. Theresa Hennig of Burlingame; Ms. Carol Sosnick, Mrs. Jared Hein of Millbrae; Ms. Beverly Ostwald, Mrs. William Burgess of Redwood City, Mrs. Leonard Kaplan and Mrs. Tod Braunsstein of Palo Alto.

Ticket information can be obtained by phoning Mrs. Harry Verby of San Mateo at 348-1234, Mrs. Jared J. Hein of Millbrae at 692-0377, or Mrs. Leonard Kaplan of Palo Alto at 494-3025.

Outdoor Education Topic of Discussion

"The Future of Outdoor Education in San Mateo County" will be the topic of discussion Feb. 19 when the 17th District, California Parent Teacher Association, gathers for a Founders' Day luncheon.

The Black Angus restaurant in San Mateo has been reserved for the event. Mrs. Russell Hill is accepting reservations through Friday.

Guest speaker will be Arnim Weems, assistant superintendent of San Mateo County Schools.

'Lame Ducks' Law Asked

County Supervisors John M. Ward was to ask his fellow supervisors Tuesday to support a proposed change in the state Elections code designed to eliminate a "lame duck" period for defeated supervisors or other officials.

His proposal is that when an incumbent supervisor or other elected county official faces only one challenger at the close of the filing period for a primary election, that the Board of Supervisors have the option to postpone the election until the November general election.

49er Waterboy's Observations

Last December we re-printed a story done by Brett Lowart in Terra Nova High School's news magazine which concerned his personal observations of Giants' personnel as a Giants' batboy. The Pacifica high school junior, who is also a three sport athlete as well as being a member of the magazine staff, has his fingers in many more pies, and that includes a stint this past season as what is commonly referred to as "waterboy" with the 49ers — or more precisely, as a waterboy for 49er opponents.

Once again Lowart had graced the pages of Tiger Tales with his personal observations, in this latest issue talking about his experiences as a — you guessed it — waterboy, a generic term, actually, which takes in much more territory, as you will see, than merely dispensing water to thirsty football players.

As we stated in our reprint of the batboy story, what follows offers a unique opportunity to see professional athletes through the eyes of a young amateur athlete who is just past the stage of hero worship, but not yet jaded enough to be unimpressed — positively or negatively — about what goes on in the atmosphere of professional sports:

WHEN FALL COMES to America it means more than just raking leaves. Talk of the National Football League daily passes through the ears of millions of fans, and many of them wonder if those "over-paid professionals" take the game as seriously as they (the fans) do. I can tell them that those over-sized, muscular, well dressed men take every game with such intensity and seriousness that it is almost insured that those fans will get their money's worth.

From the minute the bus veers through heavily guarded gates to the minute they file onto the field, one can sense that what they are doing is important, at least to them. While the fans talk, at home and at the stadium, about how their team's strategy will demoralize the opponent, the players are getting taped up in the trainer's room. Some players get right into their uniforms, but some sit on the stool in front of their cubical in a daze, thinking, maybe praying, for their health and an all around good showing to the packed stadium. The only talk is done by the defensive captains or linebackers to the coaches.

The time passes quickly and the players start loosening up in the locker room, and then the coach comes out and says "let's go." In a mournful way they go to the field to warm up. The quarterbacks throw and the receivers and backs catch, and the defense does agility drills. After a short while they go back in and I get kicked out, even though I try to stay for the coache's pep talk.

The sideline standers impatiently wait through the National Anthem. The kickoff acts like a starting gun to everybody in the stadium. The speechless players suddenly turn into cheerleaders for the team on the field, and most of the time their shouts pay off because I am on the visiting sideline at the 49er games.

My job starts on the day before the game. Jimmy (my sidekick) and I unload the gear from a truck and line it up in front of their lockers. Our work isn't done until the next day, when we bring the extra equipment, towels, balls, first aid, water, and of course Gatoraide, out to the bench, and then sit back and watch the game. Of course, we do occasionally glance at the cheerleaders revolving around the field, like between every play and all through the halftime, but we don't miss much of the game.

THE FIRST TEAM to come to Candlestick Park this (past) year was the Denver Broncos, in an exhibition game. I have to admit it wasn't too good a game because of the players' strike. There were no big names and no big league playing. They carried about 60 players and the locker room had no room for me, as I was constantly being pushed out, and I wasn't about to do anything about it. . . . no way. The players weren't too talkative. Most of them were worried about the upcoming cut.

The Cincinnati Bengals calmly approached the 49ers and calmly walked away after they beat them in more ways than one. There were only a few players who talked, but they did enough for everyone. Charlie Davis, the rookie running back from Colorado, came early and watched the Ram-Patriot game on T.V. with us. He didn't talk, but he liked what I said about little Patriot running back Mac Herron, who (I said) is 5'5" on tall cleats.

Isaac Curtis, the speedy pass catcher, gave me tickets to go out and sell cheap, with all the proceeds going to my favorite charity — me. Ken Anderson, the marksman-quarterback, played catch with me until his receivers were finished running. Catching a few of his spirals was like squeezing a hot coal.

St. Louis arrived on Oct. 6 with a young team, but right from the start their team spirit indicated they were winners. The old man of the team, placekicker Jim Bakken, is no doubt a main source of enthusiasm. This team had one fantastic human interest story. Bonnie Sloan, defensive tackle, is deaf. He is very bright and he is kind, too. He understood every word I said, and replied to me, and I didn't even know the couldn't hear me until I read about his deafness in the papers the next day.

Crosstown rival Oakland Raiders took the bus ride across the bay twice this year. I always take special note of the quarterback, Ken (Snake) Stabler had a special air about him. The other players came to him for advice, as his roommate George Blanda told jokes like: "If he steps in front, Kenny, you better not throw it, or you'll have to tackle him."

THE LOS ANGELES Rams also trekked to Candlestick twice. Both times they contended that the water tasted awful, but I insisted that I didn't do anything to it. Dave Elmendorf, Ram defensive back and kick return man, got under a 49er punt, but instead of catching the ball, it hit off his helmet high into the arms of an waiting 49er. After the game, defensive tackle Merlin Olsen complimented Elmendorf and jokingly admitted that he could run back punts better. One Ram I wouldn't want to run into is Cullen Bryant. He doesn't look like a train, just the caboose. The highlight of the Ram sideline is when Cullen returns a kick and carries 11 men for 20 yards.

Although I work on the visiting side, I have a chance to talk to the 49ers. The funniest this year was Doug Cunningham, 49er running back (later traded to Washington), also called Goober, telling a story to all the 49ers. "I got a ball on the 33 and Forrest (Blue, center) let Lanier (one tough hombre) of the Chiefs slide off, so I put my head down and tried to stick him on the goal post. When I awoke, I was in the hospital, wanting to know if I fumbled." His roommate, Larry Scheiber, couldn't stop laughing and added, "Goob, I'll bet you can't wait until Kansas City next year."

Danny Abramowitz, the little wide receiver, always walks by and says something about me having to duck under the goal post. (Ed. Note: Lowart is very tall) I just laugh and tell him to stay out of my way or I'll step on him. Steve Spurrier, the former Heisman Trophy winner, was out with a shoulder separation, and since he wasn't playing we watched the acrobats flip up and down.

Employing all the dramatic moves of a "Class B" spy thriller, the North Peninsula League may be on the verge of a playoff-shattering protest that will set a much-needed precedent for athletic eligibility cases.

So far, there have been early dawn surveillance shifts, charges and counter-charges from both sides, and a general feeling of panic throughout the league as the Shaughnessy playoffs approach.

At stake is the eligibility of junior Skip Campbell, Serramonte's center, his brother Ken, a starter on the Regent sophomore basketball team, and generally the eligibility of every questionable athlete within the conference.

Rumors have circulated throughout the league for some time about Campbell's residency status. His parents live in South San Francisco, but they have listed a Pacifica resident as his "legal guardian."

El Camino Coach Owen Kashevaroff filed a letter with both Serramonte and league Commissioner Mike Orlich several weeks ago asking for a clarification of Campbell's status.

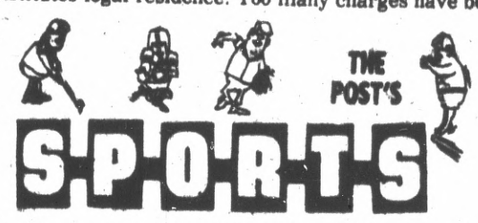

"We asked Serramonte to explain how Skip could be going there without an inter-district transfer, no court order allowing it, nor any legal residence within the Serramonte district," Kashevaroff explained. "We waited for several weeks, and when no answer came from either Serramonte or the commissioner, we decided to push ahead through the board of managers for a decision."

Kashevaroff decided it would be best for him to make the protest, as he stands littlest to gain.

"I knew the playoff contenders wouldn't do it for fear of having a 'sour grapes' charge leveled at them," he added. "I have nothing to personally gain, nor does El Camino. As a matter of fact, if Skip was told to go to the school within his parent's district, he would have to go to South San Francisco, our biggest rival."

Campbell, though not a super-talented basketball player, may be the top college football prospect in the area. At 6-2 and 225 pounds, he is a crunching, punishing fullback with speed who should be the Regents' — and possibly the league's — leading ground-gainer next season.

"I know Skip," Kashevaroff continued. "I hate to have this happen to him personally, but it's about time we got some clarification in this league about what constitutes legal residence. Too many charges have been levied for too long. It's getting to be a joke among all the coaches."

If Campbell is declared ineligible, Serramonte would have to forfeit all its basketball wins and be dropped from the playoffs. That would mean both Terra Nova and Oceana would automatically get into this weekend's Shaugnessy. It would also mean that the Regents' sophomores, also playoff finishers, would be dropped from the playoffs. All of Serramonte's football wins would also be forfeited.

"This situation has been known by everyone concerned for a long time now," Kashevaroff added. "It's too bad people put the decision off until now, but we want a decision made this week one way or the other. Declare him eligible or ineligible, but get it done now."

The board's next scheduled meeting isn't until March 10, much too late to have a bearing on this week's playoffs, so coaches are anxious for an emergency meeting to be called today if the evidence warrants it.

Two school district personnel followed Campbell from his SSF home to school last week to gain part of the evidence needed. But if this is enough or the right kind of evidence is a question right now up to the district attorney and the board.

The Board of Managers instructed El Camino Principal Robert Keropian to contact the district attorney's office for an opinion on what constitutes evidence of legal guardianship.

"I submitted a letter last Friday to the DA's office, and I am now awaiting for his opinion," said Keropian. "I'm hoping for an answer at the very latest today, on which we can make a presentation to the board."

Board President Thanos Panagoulis, principal of Terra Nova, said that "we aren't planning an extra meeting now, unless new evidence makes it necessary. But if it means a difference in a playoff representative, we would naturally quickly call the meeting. We are concerned with getting a legal interpretation once and for all."

"It's regrettable that this thing occurred," said Al Campbell, Skip's father and an assistant football coach at Serramonte. "I would be glad to see some clarification on residency and eligibility rules. We feel our actions have been 100 per cent legal and above board, and we'll stand behind them.

"They claim we didn't renew an inter-district transfer this year," he added. "As a matter of fact, Skip went to Oceana as a first-semester freshman, but when we moved to South City, Oceana told us he would have to leave that school.

"For personal reasons, we decided to leave him within the district. In his sophomore year, we applied for interdistrict tranfers for both Skip and my daughter. For some unknown reason my daughter got the transfer okay, but they denied it to Skip"

Westmoor Win Over SSF Clinches NPL Championship

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

Westmoor High School won its second straight North Peninsula League basketball championship Friday night and it's quite possible that Terra Nova won its playoff position over a week ago without even knowing it.

The Rams, now 12-1 with only one game left, held off South San Francisco, 77-68, with the loss eliminating the Warriors completely from any playoff hopes. South City has a 5-8 record, only one game behind TN's 6-7 mark with a game remaining but other factors have entered into the frantic battle for the fourth playoff position.

Other conference action Friday had Terra Nova besting Serramonte, 57-46; Oceana edging Half Moon Bay, 53-51; and Jefferson blasting El Camino, 78-59.

Three playoff positions have been decided — Westmoor, Serramonte and Jefferson no matter what happens in Wednesday's finale. But the last spot really hinges on the outcome of the South City-Oceana game.

This is the way it breaks down:

1. If Westmoor beats Terra Nova and South City beats Oceana — Terra Nova goes by virtue of a season sweep over Oceana;

2. If Westmoor beats Terra Nova and Oceana beats South City — Oceana goes by virtue of a better seasonal record;

3. If Terra Nova beats Westmoor and South City beats Oceana — Terra Nova goes because of a better record;

4. If Terra Nova beats Westmoor and Oceana beats South City — Terra Nova goes again because of the sweep.

In the event of a multiple tie for a playoff position the representative is determined by wins against opponents tied with or above those teams. The sweep of TN over Oceana assumes great importance then.

WESTMOOR 77, SOUTH SF 68

Smooth Maurice Pittman hit seven of nine free throws on his way to a 13-point eight-minute span to keep the South City Warriors at bay and help Westmoor win the conference championship.

Westmoor had started off behind a fantastic first quarter by sophomore forward Chris Tyeskey and pulled away to a quick 16-2 lead. Tyeskey scored 14 of the first 20 Ram points, blocked one shot, got five rebounds and had two assists in eight minutes.

The Rams upped that margin to as many as 22 before halftime but never could put away the Warriors completely. South City climbed steadily back and actually trailed by only three points on four occasions in the last period.

But Pittman, springing as if the game were just a minute old, got control of the rebounding, worked inside for his points and led the Rams at the free throw line. Westmoor hit 13 of 17 charity attempts in the final quarter.

TERRA NOVA 57, SERRAMONTE 46

Serramonte will play Jefferson in the first round of the post-season playoffs no matter what happens so the Regents were not exactly knife-edged sharp for this game against the Tigers.

Paul Guterres led a second-half surge for the Tigers that widened a five-point intermission bulge to as many as 13 before the third quarter ended. Serramonte did not shoot well against the Tiger zone and, especially in the first quarter, when the Regents did get inside they had numerous shots blocked by the Tigers, who still have everything to gain by continuing to win.

OCEANA 53, HALF MOON BAY 51

A 20-foot jumper by forward Gordon Speck with four seconds left gave Oceana continued hope in its playoff chase.

Half Moon Bay had led by as many as six with four minutes remaining but John Holland and Rich Smetzer led a Shark comeback that finally ended in a 51-49 Oceana lead.

Scott Amour's two free throws with 13 seconds left tied the game for HMB, which missed 12 free throws while Oceana was missing 15, but Speck's bomber put the game away.

JEFFERSON 78, SERRAMONTE 59

Jefferson and Serramonte won't have to travel far to scout each other for their upcoming playoff meeting. These two teams, destined to meet in the playoff's first round no matter what, will e-d regular season play against each other next Wednesday.

The Indians were just too quick for the Colts Friday afternoon and led by as many as 34 points before subs filled the gymnasium. Jose Guamon and Randolph Singleton combined for 34 points to lead the Jeff quintet.

The Indians' playoff hopes were somewhat dimmed when it was revealed that sixth-man guard Mike Osborn, a key part of the Jefferson offense, would be lost for the rest of the year for disciplinary reasons.

Serra High Upsets St. Ignatius 54-50

By STEVE JOHNSON
Post Correspondent

Serra High School's basketball team played a command performance as "giant killer" Friday night.

The Padres upset mighty St. Ignatius of San Francisco, 54-50, in an overtime game that was witnessed by a noisy but helpful capacity crowd at the Serra gym.

Padre guard John O'Leary hit five free throws in the final 23 seconds of the extra period to end SI's 23-game win streak.

Serra finished the regular WCAL season in second place with an 8-4 record behind round robin champ SI (11-1). The Wildcats, the top-rated team in the Central Coast Section before the game, will be odds-on choices to win the league playoffs next week.

"We knew we had a good chance at beating them," said first-year Padre coach Pat McGlennon. "We'd lost to them before, but that was at their place and we stayed right with them most of the way. That gave us the confidence for this one.

"We were at the height of our game tonight, and that crowd was a big reason why. It's a super advantage to have all those people yelling and screaming for you."

Serra Playoff Ducats on Sale

Tickets for the Catholic Athletic League playoff game between Serra and Riordan are now on sale at the Serra High School business office.

The game will be played Thursday, 8:30 p.m., at the USF gym.

Giannini Honored by Foundation

Amadeo Peter Giannini (A. P. Giannini), world renowned late founder of the original Bank of Italy, now Bank of America, will once again be honored posthumously.

He is being named as one of the first 24 Californians to be listed on the roster of the state's Most Distinguished Citizens by the Distinguished California Award Foundation.

Giannini, who for many years lived at his home in San Mateo at 20 El Cerrito Ave., is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Claire Giannini Hoffman, who still lives in the old family home.

The selection of distinguished Californians will be conducted on an annual basis by the non-profit corporation with headquarters in Los Angeles. The organization plans development of an Award Foundation Shrine and a California Historical museum and library.
